

Good news headlines since November 2024

- Cycling to school almost became extinct – until one man revived the bike bus
- UK firm recovers 97% lithium from used batteries, new method can transform EV industry
- UK scientist wins prize for invention that could help avert ‘phosphogeddon’
- Electric cars in UK last as long as petrol and diesel vehicles, study finds
- How climate-friendly waterwheels are coming around again
- US supreme court allows Hawaii lawsuit against fossil fuel firms’ misinformation
- Grey seals, minke whales and bluefin tuna: is the North Sea bouncing back to its glory days?
- Back from the dead: the ‘zombie’ ponds repumping nature into Essex farmland
- ‘If 1.5m Germans have them there must be something in it’: how balcony solar is taking off
- ‘It absolutely took off’: five UK biodiversity success stories
- The five-minute city: inside Denmark’s revolutionary neighbourhood
- Kenya is Africa's leading country on renewables. In 2000 60% of electricity was from fossil fuels – now just 6%.
- New powder that captures carbon could be ‘quantum leap’ for industry
- Heat pump scheme for Edwardian social housing aims to bust low-carbon myths